KEEPING IT UP.

Having taken "one false step" in publishing a bogus account of a private meeting of Democrats, our morning contemporary illustrates the adage that such a step will "ever lead to more," when the stepper has not wisdom for his guide. Paisehood follows falsehood in the Tribune's vain attempt to manufacture a split in the Democratic party, out of such meagre materials as a difference of opinion between one Democrat and the Salt Lake Herald, and between two Democrats on the floor of the constitutional convention.

The Herald pointed out on Sunday morning a number of silly blunders and positive untruths in the Tribune's pretended report of the private meeting of Friday night. Our contemporary insists that its report was "subattributes to them. Meeting one of American products and property. attributes to them. There is some of the old leaven left, however, as the negative vote on the amendment shows. There were sixteen members of the Constitutional Convention who were not willing to have polygamy deemed a felony, but it may be presumed that they represented an outworn and obsolete creed and that their influence is not sufficient to affect the future of Utah.

During the war such bonds as we could float in Lombard street were taken at from 35 to 55 cents on the dollar, and most other municipal, corporative and miscellaneous obligations were floated on the same terms. The successful issue of the war caused these obligations to appreciate to the equity of the greenback level, which was also slowly appreciating to the coin level.

But natural appreciation was not fast enough for Lombard street, and In June, 1867, the secretary of the treasury, Hugh McCulloch, began the first act in the succession of conspiracies through which the government became participes criminis in the robbery of its own people, by persistent and rapid contraction of the greenback money in the face of a rapidly increasing population and expanding ture the appearance of division in the business. With the renewed lease of power involved in Grant's re-election in 1872, the conspirators felt themselves on secure ground, and silver was surreptitiously demonetized, as the first act in the resumption of specie payments, which therefore was caused to mean gold coin payment. Meantime the expected climax occurred in the panio of 1873, and the values of all property enormously declined. By this time the per capita of indebtedness had reached $428, the most of which had been caused by the conspirators to increase in value from a natural basis of 73 cents to an artificial basis of 93 cents on the dollar. Specie resumption, long foreseen and discounted, was practically accomplished by 1876, and the 73-cent debts were made payable on a hundred-cent basis.
